TEL AVIV (R) + A Palestiman killed by Israeli security forces earlier this month may have been captured alive, tortured into betraving tellow Islamic Jihad members and then shot dead, Israel's Itim news agency has reported. Itim quoted sources close to Islamic Ithad and the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) as saying an autopsy on Mitcheh Azir, who escaped from Gaza prison in May, showed traces of beating on his body as well as gunshot wounds. An Israeli army spakesman denied the report and said Azir was one of three Palestinians shot dead when they drove through a roadblock outside the Al Bureij refugee camp on Oct. 1, and there were no other marks of violence on the corpse. However he was not identified when the army named the two other persons killed in the Ai Buter; incident, and first reports received by foreign correspondents that day spoke of only two dead. Five days later, Israeli forces killed four other Islamic lihad guerrillas in a shootout in the Shandiye quarter of Gaza. The Itim report, broadcast on armed forces radio, said the Palestinians believed Azir was captured alive, and killed only after leading investiga-tors to the Islamic Jihad cell

The PSD cautioned the public when driving on the Amman-Zarqa highway and also warned citizens and tourists of floods in Wadi Musa and Petra.

Mr. Reagan consulted his top advisors on the Gulf crisis.

Administration sources said Mr. Reagan, 76, had cancelled plans to spend the weekend at his Camp David retreat in the Maryland mountains outside Washington. This was seen as an indication he wanted to stay close to the White House to monitor events.

Missiles slam 2 U.S.-linked tankers in Kuwaiti waters

It was the first direct strike on a Kuwaiti ship protected by the U.S. navy on its run through international waters in the Gulf. A Kuwaiti cabinet statement

Shultz begins Mideast visit saying he has nothing new to offer for peace

TEL AVIV (Agencies) — U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz arrived in Israel Friday on the first leg of a Middle East swing and held talks with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Mr. Shultz had also scheduled meetings with Foreign Minister Shimon Peres later Friday. He also plans to meet during his three-day trip with a group of Palestinians from the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

An expected focus of Mr. Shultz's talks is the proposed international peace conference advocated by Mr. Peres and rejected by Mr. Shamir. Peres aides have said privately they expect Mr. Shultz to bring new ideas to budge Mr. Shamir from his longstanding opposition to the idea. But Mr. Shultz has said he would not intervene in the dispute, which has divided Israel's coalition government. "Obviously we all care a great deal about peace and about moving in that direction," he said in an airport press conference on his arrival. "We all want to get to bilateral negotiations," he said. "How to get there is the question... I hope we will all put on our creative thinking hats and get there."

Peace hopes will be a focus of

Mr. Shultz's meetings in Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia and with His Majesty King Hussein before heading to Moscow for arms con-trol talks on Oct. 22 and 23 with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

At their first working session, Mr. Shamir urged Mr. Shultz to intercede with Soviet leaders in Moscow next week so that "all Jews who wish to do so (are) allowed to emigrate on the basis of national repatriation," his

On the same day, he proposed, U.N. observers would be dispatched to monitor the truce. After "D-day," both sides would withdraw their forces to interna-started the war, and would go along with a formal truce only after the panel's findings are released. Iran which occupies Iraqi territory, has refused to commit itself to a troop withdrawal.

Iraq, fearing Iran will not withdraw, has insisted on a clear link between a troop pullout and ceas-efire. However, Iraqi officials have said they have no objection to the impartial body starting its work on the same day as a ceasefire, and having a withdrawal take place "without delay." The council also now appears to be endorsing this concept.

The Security Council text says: "They (the council members) note that the outline of the secretary-general envisages, on D-day, which should be agreed upon as soon as possible, the observance of a ceasefire in conformity with Resolution 598 and the setting into motion of other necessary elements of the resolution."

The Council document also authorises Mr. Perez de Cuellar to set up the "machinery that will be needed" to put the peace moves into place. The new Security Council document makes no mention of any threat of sanctions, indicating the United States lost its drive to have the council warn it would impose a worldwide arms embargo on whichever side didn't comply with the U.N. peace plan. Iran says it would observe an

French navy finds more mines in Gulf of Oman

W. German warships sail to Mediterranean

PARIS (AP) — The French navy said Friday that its forces in the Gulf area discovered two new mines, bringing to six the total found since France began its operations last month.

The announcement by the navy general staff said the mines were found Friday morning by the minchunter Garigliano just off Khor Al Fakkan on the Gulf of Oman side of the United Arab Emirates.

Naval forces were in the process of detonating the mines, it

The French minehunting force is made up of the Garigliano, Cantho and Orion, with the support ship Loire.

Earlier mines were found on Oct. 1. Oct. 2 and two on Oct. 7. The minehunters are part of the French naval force in the Indian Ocean, which also includes the aero-naval support group made up of the aircraft carrier Clemenceau and the frigates Suffren and Duquesne, as well as a third group which the navy command said was "assuring the surveillance of commercial vessels flying the French flag in the Arabo-Persian Gulf." The statement said the discovery brought to six the number of mines discovered by the minesweeping force sent by France to clear international waters at the mouth of the Gulf.

Navy officials said the two mines were found floating below the surface at a depth of between 15 and 30 metres, connected by a steel wire to a base on the sea

Four mines spotted by French ships earlier this month were Soviet-made MO8s.

The United States, France and Britain are coordinating their search for mines in and around the Gulf. Italy has also sent vessels towards the area.

Minesweepers were sent after floating mines believed by Western countries to have been laid by Iran, were discovered outside the Gulf in August.

Meanwhile three West German warships sailed for the Mediterranean on Thursday to replace vessels of NATO allies that are protecting shipping lanes in the Gulf, a navy spokesman said.

Erich Dams, a spokesman for the West German Navy's fleet command in Gluecksburg, said the destroyer Moelders, the frigate Lower Saxony and the supply ship Freiburg set sail at 11 a.m.

(1000 GMT). He said the Moelders left from its home port in Kiel and that the Lower Saxony and Freiburg left from the north German port city of Wilhelmshaven. The ships are due to arrive in the Mediterranean by Oct. 22, the spokesman said. West German government officials said last week that the ships will first take part in manoeuvres with U.S., British and Italian vessels, and then continue to operate in the region as part of the U.S.-directed NATO force

The navy command said in a statement that the deployment of the vessels is a "clear indication of the Federal Republic of Ger-

there until the middle of Demany's solidarity with its allies."

The ships should be back in their home ports by Dec. 18, the navy command said.

The decision to send the ships to the Mediterranean marks the first time that West German ships have joined a NATO task force operating in the region, the navy command said.

West Germany's constitution prohibits sending troops or warships to areas outside of NATO territory such as the Gulf, where U.S. vessels and warships from other alliance allies are protecting oil tankers from attack in the Iran-Iraq war. West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl promised the United States in June that his government would study other possible ways to help NATO allies who had ordered warships to the Gulf.

WASHINGTON (R) — The ships," it said. U.S. Navy has said it would "This is a lesson learned in improve the safety design of new wurships and had sent additional fire-fighting equipment to its ships in the Gulf as a result of the devastating missile attack on the frigate Stark.

The announcement came in a navy investigation report on the May 17 incident in which 37 U.S. sailors died when the Stark was badly damaged by two Exocet missiles fired by an Iraqi F-1 Mirage jet.

Flames quickly spread out of control and heat in the crew quarters soured to 3,500 degrees Fahrenheit (1.926 degrees Centigrade) on the 136-metre frigate, according to the report sent to Congress by Navy Secretary

James Webb. The Defence Department admitted the Stark warned the attacking Iraqi pilot too late and never fired at the jet, which Iraq said mistakenly launched the French-built missiles against what the pilot thought was an Iranian

An additional special kit of fire-fighting equipment is also being put aboard the U.S. Middle East Force command ship La Salle to be ready for quick movement to any ship in need, the navy added.

The investigators, headed by former Navy Undersecretary James Goodrich, said one of the Iraqi Exocets did not explode but its remaining propellant fuel fed a major fire in the ship's crew quarters and Combat Information Centre.

Both the Defence Department and Congress earlier praised the learned, the navy is taking action crew for fighting the fire for more than a day.

But defence officials told Reuters in June that lack of portable telephones and of access to oxygen-breathing equipment on the Stark had exacerbated problems.

which are now among the 11 U.S. warships operating in the Gulf

The Stark, which returned to Mayport, Florida, for repairs after the incident, will eventually be sent to Mississippi for a com-plete overhaul, including upgraded systems for pumping wa-ter on to fires and then pumping that water out of the ship.

In a heavily-censored second investigative report also released on Thursday, a navy board of inquiry said the ship's senior officers "assumed the aircraft would fly benignly by" and never engaged special guns and missiles to deal with the situation.

That report stressed that the Stark never knew it was under attack until a lookout shouted missile inbound, missile inbound," less than a minute after the ship had identified itself by

Under the rules of engagement at the time, the ship could have and should have responded before the missiles were fired, according to the inquiry board, headed by Rear Admiral Grant Sharp, commander of Cruiser-Destroyer Squadron Group II.

Citing the uniqueness of the situation and a desire to spare further grief to relatives of those killed in the attack, the navy earlier decided not to court-martial the captain of the Stark for deteliction of duty.

Dukakis urges U.N. peace force in Gulf

NEW YORK (R) - Democratic presidential contender Michael Dukakis called on Thursday for an international peacekeeping force in the Gulf and said it was absurd for U.S. ships to be protecting Kuwaiti tankers.

"What we have is an absurd situation. We have two or three dozen U.S. ships protecting 11 Kuwaiti tankers. What we need is a ceasefire, an embargo on foreign arms sales and a U.N. multilateral peacekeeping force to pro-tect all foreign ships in the Gulf," the Massachusetts governor told reporters. The U.S. Navy has been escorting Kuwaiti tankers - reregistered in the United States and flying the U.S. flag -through the Gulf since July.

Mr. Dukakis, who spoke to reporters after addressing a meeting of the Association for a Better New York, also urged Washington to back a Central American peace plan, drawn up by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias.

"I think the United States ought to get behind the Arias plan, which is the best opportunity to stop the killings ... and begin the peace process," Mr. Dukakis

Meanwhile a House of Representatives committee approved a measure on Wednesday that would require Kuwait to pay $250,000 to the United States each time U.S. warships escort Kuwaiti tankers through the Gulf - or lose the service.

The Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries voted 32-7 in favour of the bill to establish the fees. To become law, the full House and Senate must pass the same legislation.

The measure would establish the fees to help pay for the U.S. operation to protect 11 Kuwaiti vessels from Iranian attack in the Gulf, which began in late July and has been estimated by some legislators to cost between $20-$30 million a month above normal expenses.

More than 700 scholars have ended a five-day international conference in Mecca, Saudi Arabia, with a condemnation of Iran for the riots that claimed hundreds of lives in the holiest city of Islam

The scholars, who represented the world's estimated 850 million Muslims, also lauded the Saudi royal family for "perfecting" security of all pilgrims" during annual pilgrimage seasons to Mecca and Medina.

They affirmed their confidence in the Saudi leadership as custodians of Islam's holiest shrines the Kaaba Mosque in Mecca and the Mosque of Mohammad in Medina. This was seen here as a rejection by the conference of Iran's demand that the House of Saud be stripped of the custodianship of the holy places.

The resolutions were referring to the July 31 Mecca clashes in which more than 400 pilgrims, most of them Iranian, were killed. The Tehran government accused the Saudis of opening fire on the

U.S., Israel vote against closer U.N.-Arab cooperation

UNITED NATIONS (R) — The United States and Israel cast the only votes against a General Assembly resolution on Thursday calling for increased cooperation between the United Nations and the Arab League.

The resolution was approved by a vote of 153-2, with no abstentions.

The United States said it objected to a paragraph calling on the U.N. secretary general to implement resolutions on the Middle East which the United States had opposed.

Several delegations which voted for the resolution also expressed reservations on this

Israel said the activities and objectives of the Arab League regarding Israel contradicted the U.N. charter and that the League had a vested interest in maintaining the Arab-Israel conflict.
The League's U.N. observer

said the votes cast in favour of the resolution were a resounding rebuttal of Israel's campaign against the League. He also said the United States position was unfortunate, especially in view of its positive stance towards the League in recent years. The Assembly earlier approved without a vote a resolution urging closer cooperation between the United Nations and the Organisation of the Islamic Conference.

Parliament meets today to finalise replies to speech from the throne

By a Jordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN — The Upper House (Senate) and Lower House of Parliament meet separately today to discuss their respective replies to the speech from the throne, which His Majesty King Hussein delivered at the official reconvening of Parliament seven days

Two committees formed by the two Houses have already completed two draft replies.

The Lower House, meeting in a regular session on Thursday. denounced Tuesday's Iranian missile strike on a Baghdad prim-ary school that killed 36 children and adults

In a cable the House sent to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, deputies called on the international community, and Arab and Islamic countries to deplore the Iranian act of aggression and to condemn the Tehran regime.

"We condemn the barbaric and aggressive acts committed by the Iranian regime on Iraqi children and elderly citizens... such acts could only reveal the political and military weakness of the Iranian system," said the message. These brutal acts contradict Islamic principles and norms of all other religions and interna-tional principles," it said.

Deputies also voiced their support for and confidence in the lraqi people and army under the leadership of Mr. Hussein. "We are confident in your capabilities of stopping such acts and deter-ring the Iranian aggression." the message said. The cable was sent following the unanimous adoption of a suggestion to the House by Zarqa Deputy Abdul Baqi Gammo.

Mr. Gammo also called on the House to reaffirm Jordan's support to the Iraqi stand in the Gulf war and to praise Baghdad's clear efforts to end the conflict.

During the almost three-hour session on Thursday, deputies also formed the House's four permanent committees - financial, legal, administrative and

However, three rounds of secret ballots were held to form the foreign affairs committee since 28 candidates were vying for the 15-member committee. Each de-puty had to chose 15 out of the 28 contenders.

Al Ra i: Iranian crimes

THE recent Iranian crime against Iraqi school students in Baghdad is the natural outcome of the international mitigation in imposing sanctions against the Iranian regime. It also poses a challenge to Arabs and disregard to the Security Council resolutions and insistence on making the Security Council Resolution 598 no more than ink on paper. The attack constitutes an ugly crime committed against the innocent children and shows that Iranians, who also bombarded the Iraqi city of Sulaimanieh on Thursday and shelled the oil tankers which do not fly flags of the foreign fleets, want this foreign hegemony and protection. Therefore, it has become clear now that the Iran-Iraq war has been used by some superpowers as an excuse to build up its military strength and intensify its military presence in the Gult region. By doing so, such powers invest the process of accompanying oil tankers commercially and make money by collecting specific dues on each ship escorted by foreign fleets. However, it seems that such superpowers, which failed to impose sanctions on Iran, have no interest in saving children's lives, because children's lives do not give them any political or commercial gains. If such mitigation continues, then it will serve as an authorisation by these superpowers to Iran to continue its terror and war in the region. Such tragic developments should prompt all those concerned to put an end to the Iran-Iraq war.

Al Dustour: Shultz comes for the rescue

U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz' visit to occupied Palestine Friday comes at a time when the whole occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip have been a scene for an uprising which started seven days ago. Believing that Shultz visit won't introduce any change in the American stand, which is always supportive of Israel, we hope that the visit will be an opportunity for Shultz to see for himself the oppressive Israeli measures against our kinsmen in the occupied Arab territories. By using all forms of terror and oppression and by killing women and children, the Israeli occupation authorities thought they could silence the voice of the Palestinians who are defending their rights and land. However, their expectations failed when the people's uprising spread to include every town and village in the occupied Arab territories. It is expected that Shultz will see for himself the Israeli practices against Arab citizens in the occupied Arab territories, as it is also expected that he will hear the Israeli total rejection of any proposal for establishing peace. Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir has always voiced his government's rejection of the proposed international peace conference on the Middle East, a proposal which has received the full support and blessing of the international community and the Arab countries. Everybody knows that Shultz does not need any information on Israel's procrastination and its brutal measures against our people in the occupied Arab territories. But the question is: Is Shultz or the American administration willing to adopt a firm stand vis-a-vis these Israeli practices? And if so, will the American administration have the courage to force Israel to respect the international resolutions and principles? We do not rely too much on Shultz visit to Israel and we don't expect that it will come up with a radical change,

Sawt Al Shaab: Iran wants to obstruct summit

THE recent escalation of hostilities by Iran and the mass up of forces reflect clearly the evil Iranian intentions, aimed at changing the situation in the Gulf region into a flammable and explosive one, with the aim of obstructing the convocation of the extraordinary Arab summit in Amman on Nov. S. Tehran rulers, who rocketed a children's school in Baghdad and have turned Basra into a new Stalingrad, aim at aborting the results of Amman summit, which was declared by Arab leaders as the decisive summit, which will address the problems facing the Arab Nation at this very delicate time, when the whole Arab Nation is facing many dangers and threats. The Iranians also intend to block all roads for achieving the U.N. Security Council Resolution 598 which called for an immediate end to the war and the return of the warring parties to the internationally recognised borders. Therefore, it has become imperative on the international community and on all powers who are supposed to protect the region from imminent or expected dangers to intervene directly with the aim of deterring Iran from continuing and escalating its destructive war.

Thursday's

Al Ra'i: Palestinian protests

THE popular protest in the occupied West Bank and the Gaza Strip lasted for more than five days in manifestation of the Arab and Muslims anger at Israel's acts of sacrilege in the Aqsa Mosque and other holy places. The protest was also staged to show indignation for the killing and injury of innocent civilians by Israeli troops in Ramallah during anti-Israeli demonstrations. It is clear that the Palestinians in their protest have been prompted by Israel's inhuman actions and arbitrary measures. But the Israelis maintain that the Palestinians were instigated by foreign elements to coincide with a visit to the region by U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz. The Americans for their part maintain that more efforts should be made to find a solution for the Middle East question but the Americans do not take practical steps to defuse tension although Shultz is bound to discuss the subject with the Israeli and Arab sides during his forthcoming visit. There are no real indications that Shultz, through these talks, will be able to regain U.S. credibility, specially since Washington does not approve of an international conference for column the international visits and provides when Shultz has a second conference for the international visits and provides when Shultz has a second conference for the international visits and provides when Shultz has a second conference for the international visits and provides when the conference for the international visits and provides when the conference for the conference when the conference for the conference when the conference for the conference when the conference wh solving the issue. Yet, no one can predict what Shultz has to say during his coming tour, but unless there is a real change in his government's policy with regard to the Middle East, the outcome of his tour will not be better than those carried out in the area by numerous U.S. envoys.

Al Dustour: King urges Finnish mediation

KING HUSSEIN in a speech at a banquet in his honour hosted by the Finnish president asserted that the present tension prevailing in. the Middle East continues to obstruct all efforts aimed at achieving social and economic development. The King said that despite United Nations mediation efforts for ending the Arab-Israeli conflict, peace is not achieved. For this reason, Jordan has been calling for the convening of an international peace conference under U.N. auspices to find a formula for a lasting peace. This conference the King said, is needed for the implementation of U.N. Security Council resolutions. On the Gulf war the King said that Iran's aggression has been going on for more than seven years, and the international community should take steps to implement U.N. Security Council Resolution 598 which is aimed at bringing about a lasting peace between Iran and

The 1987 Arab summit: A message

A LITTLE over a century ago, the first Zionist colony in Palestine was established. Since, then, the seasons seem to come and go with monotonous regularity while the Arab political condition remains in disarray, confusion and on a persistent downward slide. The intellectual output of Arab poets, social scientists, novelists, political commentators, nationalists ... etc. seems to have left but a little mark on the course of events. It is as though some hidden force, a secret, veiled and sinister hand moves what it does at its own will, as if the peoples of the area and often even their leaders have little to do with what goes on. This condition, this complex syndrome of confusion has reached such proportions that we do not know whom to blame any more.

This is the autumn of 1987, also a sad season like the summer and the spring that preceded it: Perhaps like all the other seasons that have preceded it since 1187 when Jerusalem was liberated from the Crusaders. For this autumn marks the beginning of the eighth year of the Iran-Iraq war with still no end in sight, while in Palestine an alien force has camped itself as though permanently. Twenty years ago. in 1967 and following the occupation of all of Palestine, the United Nations Security Council passed Resolution 242 in November of that year. It has since become mere ink; even for the Israelis who, in their arrogance of power, continue to hold by the throat, the land

In Lebanon, Israel also continues to hold captive that land and its people. Neither law, nor custom, nor human or religious sentiment seem to prohibit or inhibit Israel from its daily abuses: Its bullets and napalm shower the land just as it does in Palestine on almost a daily basis. In both these lands, the lands of Canaan and Phoenicia, civilisations once flourished that rested on more than mere brute force. The barbarity to which both have been subjected fascinates, though it does not seem to move, the whold world, or us Arabs, for that matter, into any meaningful action. The United Nations resolutions on the Lebanon too are mere ink.

In Iraq, once called the land of Babylonia, the scene is just as sinister, where another primitive force religiously motivated too is at work reeking death and havoc on the land and the peoples of the area. And like the Israelis, a sense of martyrdom and persecution seems to be the prime motivator for the continued pillage. What will happen to 598?

The scene elsewhere in the Arab World is not much brighter. In the extreme western part of the Arab World two Arab armies stand facing each other; troubles in Tunis; and elsewhere, seven Arab states under threat by Iran; a secessionist movement in the Sudan and yet elsewhere festering border and ideological problems. Internally, each Arab country plays its own tune while popular participation is virtually, universally, absent.

The "intellectuals" are just as alienated as they were a century ago and, are in their frustration, lending themselves to more and more abstract thought. The gap between them and the rulers, never narrow, seems to widen with the passage of time. Neutralised and neutered, the distance between them, the masses and meaningful practical dialogue also grows steadily and rapidly. In a recent debate at the Jordan World Affairs Council, questions that were considered a century ago were posed and with the same enthusiasm. Some participants spoke as if Sykes-Picot, the Balfour Declaration and twenty-two Arab entities did not exist.

November also brings to mind the Balfour Declaration and the continuous tragedy this imperial dictat has caused. Between Israel and Iran, the Arabs feel a sense of encirclement and insecurity for both have dehumanised and depersonalised us to the point they feel they can do anything and everything without a twinge of guilt or remorse. We have become captive to their real or imagined sense of history and the feeling is not healthy.

Welcome to the Arab leaders who will be coming for the November, 1987 summit in Amman. They are our leaders and in their hands they hold our destiny and that of our future generations. And while we do not expect miracles, we do expect a certain level of responsibility, solidarity, of genuine cooperation, a common stand on some of the most important issues: The Palestine problem, the Iran-Iraq war and the Lebanese conflicts. Perhaps the different views some hold vis-a-vis these problems can be turned to advantage. Iran on Lebanon and Iraq can be reached through Syria, while Israel on Palestine, Lebanon and Iraq can be reached through Egypt. We hope and pray they can do that, otherwise we shall, in the words of the ancient Arab proverb, continue to dance in pain like a wounded bird.

The power of the Jewish vote Arias Nobel Peace Prize in the U.S.: Mystique or fact? seen as slap in face to Reagan

By Ruth Sinai The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- More than a year before the 1988 elections, almost all the U.S. presidential contenders have paid their respects at the offices of the pro-Israel lobby on Capitol Hill.

They came to present their views on U.S. policy toward Israel, to get pointers, and to receive the coveted "thumbs up" from the influential lobby, which translates into a virtual guarantee of support from some 70 Jewish special interest groups.

Such is the importance of the American Jewish community, which accounts for only 4 per cent of the nationwide vote but is perceived as wielding sufficient influence to make or break a candidate for congressional or presidential office.

Is the power of the Jewish vote
a mystique or fact? A little of both, appears to be the answer.

There are two issues of paramount importance to most of the million Jews in the United States: The security of Israel and the freedom of Jews to emigrate from the Soviet Union. Part of the mystique about the power of the Jewish lobby stems from the fact that both issues have been cornerstones of biapartisan U.S.

foreign policy for many years.

Pro-Israel lobbyists argue that the U.S. policies reflect a broad consensus, rather than the influence of American Jews.

However, most candidates recognise that while no one has ever been defeated in a race for being too pro-Israel, the reverse has happened.
Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson recognised this full well in seeking to mend fences with the U.S. Jewish community after making what were considered anti-Semitic slurs in the 1984 campaign. Observers have suggested his run-ins with the Jewish community played a role in his failure to win the Democratic nomination.

Charles Percy of Illinois, the former Republican chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, alienated Israel supporters by backing the sale of advanced radar surveillance planes to Saudi Arabia in 1981. His opponent in the 1984 elections was Democrat Paul Simon, who was given $147,000 by Jewish interest groups and defeated Prominent American Jewish lobbyist Hyman Bookbinder said the switch of support was one of the decisive factors in Percy's defeat.

Paul Findley, an Illinois Republican who was defeated in 1982 after 22 years in office. views himself as a victim of the Jewish vote. Findley became a target of the Jewish interest groups after advocating U.S. support for the Palestine Liberation Organisation.

His opponents funnelled money into the campaign of Democrat Richard Durbin, instead. In a book he wrote after his defeat — "They Dare Speak Out" — Findley contended that the pro-Israel lobby, led by the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, has intimidated members of Congress to such as extent they were afraid to sound anti-Israel views.

"I don't think we deserve that much credit," said Bookbinder, a veteran lobbyist who for 20 years was the representative of the American Jewish Committee in Washington. "But we do have some clout, and I don't think we have to apologise for that either." Bookbinder contends that the pro-Israel groups are like other special interest groups exercising their constitutional right to influence government policy. If the Jewish community had been as sophisticated and well-organised during World War II as it is now, it may have helped save some Jews from the Nazi holocaust, he

The case of Jonathan Jay Pollard, the U.S. navy analyst con-victed earlier this year of selling secrets to Israel, damaged the special relationship between the American Jewish community and the Israeli government. But pro-Israel lobbyists contend the case will not have a lasting effect on the broad-based American support for Israel.

Political action committees are formed under U.S. election law so that people with common in-terests can contribute as a group to candidates they favour beyond the amounts that an individual can give to a politician.

Jewish special interest groups which are almost all single-issue pro-Israel organisations, don't do anything other PACs don't. In the 1984 election campaign, for example, they contributed some $4.5 million to congressional candidates. The total PAC contributions that year were $112.6

They also target candidates in much the same way other lobbies do, by providing their voting records on certain issues to various constituencies and organisations and paying for television advertising attacking candidates seen as unfriendly to Israel. The difference, said former senator James Abourezk, is that other PACs represent U.S. interests; the pro-Israel groups "The unfailing U.S. support for Israel, no matter what they do, puts us in a position of supporting their sins," said Abourezk, a South Dakota Democrat who stepped down in 1978 after one term.

Abourezk, whose parents immigrated to the United States from Lebanon, denied that he decided not to run for a second term because of pressure from Jewish groups.

Abourezk contended that politicians "can guess what would make them (the Jews) happy." As an example, he cited the move initiated last summer by several presidential hopefuls among them Senate majority leader Bob Dole and Republican congressman Jack Kemp - to close down the offices of the Palestine Liberation Organisation in Washington. The pressure on the administration was so strong that the office was ordered closed down. David Ifshin, who served as general counsel on the 1984 presidential campaign of Walter Mon-dale, said the Jewish vote is important in certain states which are heavily populated by Jews: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and some parts of California. Florida and Illinois also have large Jewish populations.

Ifshin, who also was Mondale's adviser on Jewish affairs, said the Jewish vote can make a difference in the Democratic primaries in those states, because Jews lean more toward Democrats than Re-The Jewish predilection toward the Democrats stems from concern about separation of church and state and progress in civil rights, he said. Ronald Reagan, for example, lost much ground with Jewish voters in 1984 — going from an all-time high for a Republican candidate of 40 per cent in 1981 to 32 per cent - despite his strong pro-Israel stands. Most lobbyists explain the drop to Reagan's close links with fun-damentalist Christian groups.

WASHINGTON — Awarding of the Nobel Peace Prize to Costa Rican President Oscar Arias is a powerful boost to the unfolding peace process in Central America and a slap in the face to President Reagan, legislators and independent experts say.

Arias was given the prize on Tuesday for his efforts to bring peace to Central America, rocked for decades by civil strife. A peace plan authored by Arias was signed by the leaders of Central America's five countries on August 7 in Guatemala. The first phase of the agreement is set to take effect on November 7. Reagan publicly congratulated Arias but the award was seen as a setback to his policies in Central America, especially his hopes to win renewed congressional military aid for the Nicaraguan contra rebels.

"It puts Reagan in a difficult position because he now has to deal with a Nobel laureate, not just a Central American president, and a plan with the mark of the Nobel Peace Prize," Adolfo Aguilar, a regional expert with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in Washington, told Reuters.

The Arias plan culminated years of unsuccessful efforts by Latin American leaders to end Central America's strife and is seen by many in the region as the last real chance for peace. The plan calls for an end to all civil wars in the region and major steps toward democratisation, primarily by Nicaragua's leftist leaders. It also seeks to end foreign assistance to guerrilla move-ments including U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan contra rebels, which Reagan has made the centerpiece of his Central American policy.

Reagan has called the Arias plan flawed in part because it Reagan of any chance of success does not require Managua to "There would be no support expel its Cuban and Soviet-blocking this time... to rush in with a because it is considered."

However Arias's elevated status will make it more difficult for other Central American leaders "Most Latin Americans will to renege on their promises to democratise and take other steps under the peace plan.

WHEN the International Rebabilitation and Reseach Centre for Torture Victims (RCT) was set up in Copenhagen in 1980, it was the first medical centre of its kind in the world. It is a private foundation staffed by medical personnel who treat victims of torture, and other centres based on its model have since emerged in other countries. Those treated at the Copenhagen centre share the symptoms of other torture victims, but the fact that they are also refugees makes their rehabilitation even more difficult.

Even though the waiting room of the RCT is temporarily void of furniture and reeks of fresh paint, it still radiates energy and hope. Its bright yellow walls frame two colourful murals designed by one of the Centre's former "clients." A table cheerfully set with coffee, tea and cakes stands at the far end of the room. The receptionist explains that the comfortable chairs and relaxed atmosphere are as much a part of the rehabilitation as the medical treatment itself. Anyone who waits here has either been tortured or is a member of his or her family - they are also refugees in Denmark.

Research carried out between 1974 and 1980 by the Amnesty International medical group with victims of torture in various countries throughout the world, led them to conclude that traditional clinical methods were inadequate when it came to the rehabilitation of torture victims. Upon their recommendations, Danish members of the committee established the first rehabilitation centre in Copenhagen. In 1980, two beds at the Rigshospitalet of the University of Copenhagen were made available in order to allow for systematic examinations and develop a model for treatment. This was the first medical centre of its kind anywhere in the world.

Since 1984, the RCT has moved to two villas adjacent to the hospital. There is a permanent staff of approximately 20 psychologists, interpreters). None of them wear white uniforms and like the reception hall, examination rooms are spacious, bright and gaily decorated, in order to avoid a setting that might resemble prison or interrogation

"Contrary to what we expected when we started," explains Dr. Marianne Juhler, one of the Centre's general practitioners, "most of the physical complaints are linked to the enormous efforts they exert to try to forget." Typical sequelae are: Gastro-intestinal problems, muscular pains, anxiety, depression, loss of memory and difficulties in concentrating. "We're not talking about people with psychiatric problems," underlines Dr. Juhler, "but healthy people who have been subjected to a deliberate destruction of their identity.'

Once the resistance to talk about the painful topic is broken, treatment is relatively easy—lasting an average of 6 months.
But many of the RTC clients need an interpreter, even if some of them have been refugees in Denmark for many years. This, of course, makes progress evaluation more difficult.

New customs, new social relations, a new language — all of this is difficult for a refugee in the best of circumstances. However, for someone who suffers from the consequences of torture, this adaptation is even more trying. Difficulties in concentrating and loss of memory, both symptoms of their torture experience, are obstacles for learning the Danish language, an important vehicle for facilitating their integration into society. "We try to make the torture experience a thing of the past," says Dr. Inge Kemp Genefke, Medical Director of the Centre. "By rebuilding the shattered identity, the individual learns to live in the present. We then try to help him or her

Rehabilitation of torture victims is a new field of medicine, and for years, the RCT was the only place in the world where systematic information was available. Today nearly one-fourth of their resources are devoted to disseminating their findings.

An International documentation centre started in 1985 is expected to be in operation before the end of summer 1987. Workshops and seminars for national and international health staff as well as associations that work with refugees are held con-tinually. Three international seminars were fully or partly sub-sidized by the U.N. Voluntary Fund for torture Victims (see Box). Other centres based on the RCT model have opened in Stockholm and Paris, besides a clinic in Manila where released prisoners are treated.

discuss these problems. Torture RCT, has obliged the Centre to victims and their spouses in a find alternatives to treatment in order to maintain the close, confidential relationship with the victim. An external network of therapists was set up in 1985. In less than two years, almost 100 persons working in the health sector all over Denmark have lent their services to the centre.

In addition to those who dedicate time to the Centre's activities, individuals and private organisations financially support the work of the RCT. Its budget in 1986 amounted to some 6.5 million Danish kroner. From the inception of the RCT, the Danish government gave a guarantee of 3 million kroner that was increased to 6 million in 1987. We're not a government institu-tion," says Dr. Kemp, "but the fact that we're acknowledged by a government grant gives us the financial security to assure an atmosphere of safety and confidence. After all, that's the basis for treatment."

Lendl drowns Krishnan

SYDNEY (R) — Ramesh Krishnan kept his head above water for 10 minutes against Ivan Lendl before being swept away by the sheer power of the world number one in the quarter-finals of the Sydney indoor tournament on Friday. Lendl, at 2-2 in the first set. showed his annoyance at serving a double fault by taking 17 of the next 18 points as the Indian number seven seed struggled to stay afloat.

Lendi will meet Slobodan Zivojinovic in Saturday's quarterfinals. The Yugoslav, seeded fourth, stumbled past the only unseeded player left in the draw, American Marty Davis, 7-5, 6-4 in an error-strewn match.

Wimbledon champion Pat Cash plays American Scott Davis, and defending champion Boris Becker takes on Paul Annacone of the United States, in the remaining quarter-finals Friday.

Lendl dropped just four points on serve during the first set but seemed to relax in the second after breaking Krishnan in the third game.

The Indian had taken just one set off the Czechoslovak in eight previous meetings and he never looked like adding to his tally on a plexipave surface he never got

Pakistan beats W. Indies soon after he had struck his AHORE, Pakistan (R) — Abdul Qadir took two runs off the last ball to snatch a remark- also included a six off Tauseef able one-wicket win for Pakistan and next ball Harper was caught over former champions West Indies in the World Cup Group B cricket match here on Friday.

Pakistan had started the final over with their last pair, Abdul Qadir and Salim Jaffer, together and still needing 14 runs to overtake West Indies' total of 216 all out from 49.3 overs.

Courtney Walsh was the bowler, just as he had been when England, wanting 13 runs off the last over a week ago, had achieved their target. For the big fast bowler, the nightmare was about to repeat itself.

Qadir took a single off the first ball, Jaffer a single off the second and Qadir, benefitting from a misfield, gathered two more off the third.

Then came the most telling blow of all, a massive straight hit by Qadir for six and four were wanted off the last two balls. A drive into the covers yielded two more runs of the fifth ball and then a sliced hit wide of slip by Qadir took the total to 217 for nine — and Pakistan had achieved a most improbable triumph to stay top of their sec-tion with a maximum 12 points from three games.

Imran, unsuccessful in his opening spell, finished with four for 37 as West Indies lost their last six wickets for the addition of 47 runs.

It had all looked so different early on when Simmons, making his first international appearance, dominated the Pakistan attack scoring 50 runs in the first 20 overs with eight fours.

But the tall Trinidadian right-hander was out next over, caught and bowled off a leading edge by off-spinner Tauseef Ahmad, and the innings never really regained its momentum.

Desmond Haynes, taking an uncharacteristic heave, was bowled by Jaffer in the 25th over and Richie Richardson was caught at backward square leg off the same bowler four overs later.

Gus Logie was fourth out at 121, Jaffer's third victim in an excellent spell in which he bowled his 10 overs uninterrupted, and after Carl Hooper had added 48 with his captain, he departed lbw to Akram for 22.

EC gives $8m to repatriate Africans

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) - The European Community (EC) said Thursday it is giving $8 million to encourage professional Africans working in industrialised nations to return home to help end shortages of qualified professionals in their countries. The EC hopes that by 1990 up to 550 professionals will return to homes in Ghana, in West Africa, the southern African states of Zambia and Zimbabwe, and Kenya, Somalia and Uganda in East Africa. Under a similar programme between 1980 and 1985, the EC helped repatriate 350 African professionals to Kenya, Somalia and Zimbabwe. The returnees included university lecturers, doctors and lawyers working in Europe and the United States. The EC pays travel expenses and boosts salaries so that the professionals do not have large cuts in income.

Aeroflot resumes flights to Iran

MOSCOW (R) - The Soviet airline Aeroflot has resumed flights to Tehran after a two-year break, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said on Thursday. In 1985, hundreds of Soviet technicians left Iran after Iraqi warplanes bombed civilian and economic targets deep inside the country. The withdrawal led to a cooling of relations between Moscow and Tehran. Iran accused the Soviet Union of trying to sabotage the Iranian economy by abandoning projects. But relations have shown a distinct improvement in recent months.

India to raise funds for nuclear plants

BOMBAY (AP) — The Indian government is to raise about 34 billion rupees ($2.6 billion) from the public to expand and increase the country's nuclear power plants, a government official announced Thursday. The money will be raised through bond sales and will cover about one-third of the 100-billion-rupee ($8 billion) expansion programme, Mr. S.L. Kati, a member of the Indian Atomic Energy Commission said. The rest of the funds will be provided from the operating surplus of the Nuclear Power Corp. (NPC), which manages the nation's three nuclear plants, or will be loaned by the government, he said. The NPC plants currently produce about 1,230 megawatts of electricity. India has set a target output of 100.000 megawatts by the turn of the

Canada to write off $267m of loans

·VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Canada announced Thursday that it will write off 347 million dollars ($267 million) in development loans to six Commonwealth countries in Africa. The low-income nations involved are Kenya, Ghana, Nigeria, Zimbabwe, Swaziland and Zambia. The amounts ranged from 1.37 million dollars ($1.05 million) for Swaziland to 109 million dollars ($84 million) to Kenya. Foreign Minister Joe Clark said Canada was acting on a commitment made last year at the U.N. special session on Africa, which called for debt relief in the poorest countries. At the Francophone summit of French-speaking nations in Quebec last month, Canada forgave 325 million dollars ($250 million) in loans to seven other African countries. Nobel Foundation plans public offer of shares to raise funds for awards

He said this year's 2.175-million-crown ($340,000) cash prizes were worth around 25 per cent less in real terms than the 150,000-crown prizes first awarded in 1901, under the terms of a will by 19th century Swedish inventor Alfred Nobel.

Mr. Ramel said the foundation had lost two thirds of Nobel's capital between 1901 and 1953 as a result of conservative investments in fixed-income bonds, but has recouped much of this in recent decades thanks to investments in property and securities. Sweden's opposition Conserva-tive Party last May proposed exempting the Nobel Foundation from all tax but Mr. Ramel said he held out little hope that the ruling Social Democrats would

SEOUL (R) — South Korea on Thursday moved to curb inflation and help firms suffering from recent labour disputes, Economic Planning Board (EPB) officials

They said prices of domestic oil products would be cut by around 10 per cent on average from Friday to help companies reduce costs, which have soared after big supply route MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) -One of Nicaragua's most strategic highways remained closed Friday, despite the government's claim that an attempt by contra rebels to cut the route had been defeated in heavy fighting.

The battle Thursday raged over more than 80 kilometres of the vital Rama Road and appeared to be one of the most savage in six years of civil war between the Sandinista government and U.S.financed rebels.

The Rama Road is the only highway linking the eastern and western halves of the country, connecting Managua with the town of Rama, a small port on the Escondido River that runs to the Caribbean port of El Bluff.

Military supplies the Soviet Union and Cuba furnish area transported to the capital over the route. Defence Minister Humberto

Ortega said Thursday the contras had staged a massive diversion along the road about 190 kilometres east of Managua while trying to cut it still farther east, near its terminus at the town of Rama.

The defence minister said pre-dawn attacks Thursday on five small villages along the highway in central Nicaragua were designed to cover a contra attempt to blow bridges near Rama and seize control of the Escondido waterway.

No survivors found in Italian plane disaster

A spokesman at Como's Paramilitary Carabinieri Headquar-ters told Reuters rescue teams had reached the crashed Turboprop ATR 42 plane at Conca Di Crezzo and found wreckage scattered over the mountainside.

"There are no survivors," the spokesman said. "We think the plane must have lost height and hit the mountain," he added. Rescuers searching the mountainous area between lakes Lecco and Como all night said the wreckage was sighted at dawn by a Carabinieri police patrol. Search parties had to scramble

Filipino coup plotters threaten to kill Aquino

MANILA (R) — Rebel soldiers who almost overthrew Philippine President Corazon Aquino in an August coup attempt are plotting to assassinate her, her press secretary said on Friday. Teodoro Benigno said death threats by the right-wing rebels were being taken seriously. "We're not joking about it any more. They're real," he said.

"That's the only way they (the rebels) can get rid of her."

Benigno said presidential security guards had uncovered details of an assassination plan by soldiers loyal to Col. Gregorio Honasan, who led the Aug. 28 rebellion and is now in hiding.

Mrs. Aquino has said the re-bels intended to kill her and her family during the height of fighting with presidential guards outside her palace.

Col. Honasan has denied trying to kill the 54-year-old president during the day-long rebellion in which 53 people died.

Mrs. Aquino said on Friday: "It's been there since I ran for the presidency (last year) and it's just one of the hazards of public service."

Asked about the death threat,

In August, unidentified gun-men killed Local Government Secretary Jaime Ferrer. Benigno and two officials involved in peace talks with Communist insurgents are also thought to be on a right-wing hit-list.

Mrs. Aquino's guards have enforced stricter security during her public appearance since August. On Thursday, soldiers were told to empty their holsters when she visited a military camp.

Prosecutors filed court martial charges on Friday against the deputy air force commander and at least 41 other officers and men over the Honasan coup, the military said.

The group was the first to be formally charged with involvement in the revolt.

Arias urges Sandinistas to negotiate with contras

SAN JOSE (R) — Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, whose peace efforts in Central America won him the Nobel Prize, has urged Nicaragua's Sandinista government to negotiate a cease-fire with its U.S.-backed adver-

"I really hope to see a little more flexibility from President (Daniel) Ortega," Mr. Arias said on Thursday night, calling on Mr. Ortega to accept church-mediated talks with the contra rebels.

Rebel spokesman Pedro Joaquin Chamorro announced in Washington early on Thursday that Nicaragua's senior Roman Catholic prelate, Cardinal Miguel Obando Y. Bravo, had agreed to mediate between the contras and the Sandinista government in an effort to achieve a ceasefire. Mr. Chamorro said a delegation of contra leaders was planning to visit Managua to start peace talks.

But Mr. Ortega said they may be arrested if they set foot in Nicaragua. He has steadfastly ruled out direct talks with the contras, whom he views as little more than U.S.-employed merce-

"A ceasefire is essential if we really want to achieve peace in Central America, and it has to be negotiated to give guarantees to both sides," Mr. Arias said. "In the case of Nicaragua, hope they will give a second thought to the idea of accepting the mediation of Cardinal Miguel Obando Y. Bravo.

Ceasefires, peace talks and amnesties to end the guerrilla wars in Nicaragua, El Salvador and Guatemala are key elements of the peace plan signed on Aug. 7 in Guatemala City by the five Central American presidents.

Air force jet crashes in U.S.

NELLIS AIR BASE, Nevada (R) - A U.S. Air Force plane crashed in the Nevada desert on Wednesday night, killing the pilot, an air force spokesman said, and television news reports said it was the top-secret Stealth fighter

Asked about the reports that the craft was a Stealth jet, an aircraft so secret the air force does not even admit it exists, spokesman Capt. Barry Anderson said he was not allowed to discuss its identity.

The plane crashed 160 kilometres north west of Las Vegas on the gunnery range of Nellis Air Force Base, where fighter pilots learn to fly combat missions. The base is also the home of the air force's aerial display team, the Thunderbirds.

Capt. Anderson said a board of officers was investigating the cause of the accident and the name of the pilot, who was based at Nellis, was being withheld until his relatives had been informed.

LOS ANGELES (R) — Donald O. Cram thought it was a practical joke when a telephone caller woke him up with word from Stockholm that he had won the Nobel Chemistry Prize, a tough thing to do when you make a living cleaning carpets. "In a very thick accent, he said, 'It's my pleasure to announce that you have won the Nobel Prize.' And I went along with it and said, 'in what field?' And he said, 'in chemistry.'" said Cram, who has a college degree in chemistry but never worked in the field, "I thought it was a practical joke, a very good one because the accent was perfect and it sounded like an overseas call. So I said, 'that's great,' and hung up." Cram laughed about it with his wife as he returned to bed, but about five minutes later the unidentified representative of the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences called back and explained in technical terms what the prize was for. Cram, who owns a carpet servicing business, then realised that he must be looking for Professor Donald J. Cram of the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA). "I never met Professor Cram, but I knew of him having mistakenly received Professor Cram, but I knew of him having mistakenly received some of his mail when I was studying at USC (University of Southern California)," Cram said of the 68-year-old professor who has taught and done research at UCLA for the past 40 years. Cram said he has been deluged with phone calls and reporters showing up at his door all morning, but is taking it all in good humour. "I don't think I'll be going into the store today, I'm having too much fun," he said. Professor Cram learned that he shared the $340,000 prize with American Charles Pedersen and Frenchman Jean-Marie Lehn in a highly unofficial manner—from a friend who heard the news on the radio.

No condom dispensers for Europarliament

STRASBOURG. France (R) - Condom dispensers will not be installed in offices of the European Parliament as a means of fighting the spread of AIDS, Parliament President Lord Plumb has announced. The proposal by Parliament Director-General Jean Feidt had split members, some seeing it as a bold move in the fight against AIDS and others fearing it would give the impression they are more concerned with sex than parliamentary affairs. But Lord Plumb said in a statement: "There is absolutely no question of this concerned with sex than parliamentary affairs. of this suggestion being taken up." Feidt, in a letter to officials, had said: "Installation of the machines would respond to concern over the spread of AIDS and to the fact that chemists who sell condoms are very far from the offices of the European Parliament." British Socialist Member of Parliament Barry Seal said: "The scheme will give the impression that we are all sex-mad instead of knuckling down to our work."

Zimbabwe seeks national anthem

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) - Seven years after independence from Britain, Zimbabwe is still without a national anthem. On Thursday, the government launched a competition to find one. Deputy Information, Posts and Telecommunications Minister Naomi Nhiwatiwa said the winners - for lyrics and music would get 15,000 Zimbabwe dollars ($9,500) and she hoped it would be chosen before the eighth anniversary of independence on April 18 next year. Prime Minister Robert Mugabe led the white-ruled British colony of Rhodesia to independence as black-governed Zimbabwe on that date in 1980 when God Save the Queen, the British national anthem, was played for the last time. Since then, Zimbabwe informally adopted Ishe Komberera Afrika as an anthem. It is a local version in the majority Shona language of the black nationalist hymn Nkosi Sikelele Afrika (God Bless Africa) composed in South Africa last century and adopted by several black-ruled nations at independence as their official anthems. Mrs. Nhiwatiwa told reporters Ishe Komberera Afrika would not be abandoned. "It has an African theme and it will always have its place," she said. Intruder reaches Oval Office

Hitler memorabilia to be auctioned MUNICH, West Germany (AP) - Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler's

portable typewriter, used to type the manuscript of his political manifesto Mein Kampf in 1924, is expected to bring more than 100,000 marks ($55,500) when it goes on the auction block next month, auction organisers have said. Michael Czerny, who is organising the Nov. 7 auction for the Munich-based auction house Hermann Historica, said the bidding for the typewriter will begin at 55,000 marks ($30,500). Czerny told reporters that the typewriter, an American-made Remington model, was obtained from the estate of one of Hitler's former private secretaries. Emil Maurice. Czerny said Hitler gave the typewriter to Maurice in appreciation for his help in preparing the manuscript, which the Nazi leader wrote in prison during 1924. Other Hitler memorabilia from Maurice's estate, including a autographed copy of Mein Kampf (my struggle) and a letter Hitler wrote on the typewriter. are also expected to bring high prices. Furniture from Hitler's mountain retreat in Bavaria state and the Nazi chancellory in Berlin are also included in the auction, Czerny said.

Taiwan to hold beauty pageants

TAIPEI (R) — Beauty is back in fashion in Taiwan. The government has dropped a 22-year ban on beauty pageants. clearing the way for 1988 Miss China and Miss Universe contests in Taipei. Reigning Miss Universe, Cecilia Bolocco from Chile, is flying into town on Sunday to meet Yu Kuo-Hua, Taiwan's austere premier whose blessing was crucial to reviving the shows. "We must abandon this old Chinese idea that if you see a foot, you think of a leg and if you see a hand, you think of an arm," a local newspaper editorialised this week. Why the official aboutturn? Some say Taiwan, a diplomatic pariah, needs the international publicity. Others say it is part of the island's new spirit of openness and reform. School children were allowed to let their hair down this year when the government dropped a rule on short back-and-sides in the classroom. And the country's ageing leaders are now debating whether to legalise disco-dancing.
